Single mom has stolen tires replaced
Car dealer says he is just paying a favour forward
BY TARA BRADBURY
THE TELEGRAM
"Tears of sorrow yesterday, tears of joy today," Shelly Bailey posted on her Facebook page Tuesday morning.
Monday morning, she was looking for help finding the thief responsible for taking the four new snow tires and rims from her 2014 Volkswagen Jetta.
The car had been parked in the lot outside her Freshwater Road apartment building overnight, and she went outside in the morning and found it resting on a tire taken from another truck in the lot.
Other tenants' vehicles were affected, too, she said batteries were stolen from two of them, and a jack was taken from another and used to take the wheels off her car.
"It was going to cost me between $600 and $1,000 to replace the tires and rims," said Bailey, a single mother of one who is on maternity leave. "Friends had actually offered to help me pay my insurance deductible, because I didn't know how I was going to do it."
Having spoken to the media about the theft, Bailey received a phone call Tuesday morning from Dan Matthews, general manager of Bill Matthews Volkswagen Audi, where Bailey had purchased her car last year.
"He said, 'I heard about your terrible situation, and it's an awful time of year for it to happen. I want to take care of your tires and rims for you,'" Bailey said.

Eduan Geldenhuys, a mechanic at Bill Matthews Volkswagen Audi in St. John's, installs new winter tires and rims on Shelly Bailey's vehicle Tuesday afternoon. Bailey's original rims and tires were stolen from her car in the parking lot outside her apartment building early Monday morning. Dealership manager Dan Matthews offered to replace them for free as a way to pay forward a favour recently done for his own family.

#AudiQ7Movement

A big event calls for a big celebration, and there was none bigger at the end of last year than the introduction of the 2017 Audi Q7—the vehicle that sets the standard for full-size luxury crossovers. Across the country, Audi dealerships welcomed special guests for the unveiling, so they could see for themselves what happens when you integrate the newest technology and the latest design into one innovative package. The 2017 Q7 takes things to a whole new level, and we thought that was worth a party.
